(Written for the Indianapolis Sentinel.) META WOODRUF.

By Mrs. Addie Dettch Frank.

Evening after evening Eugene spent with Flossy, but not alone, as Mr. Reed was always there before him, until a week had passed by since he left Woodruf Hall. At the end of that time he entered the breakfast room one morning and found his father greatly interested in the Times and very much excited.

"What is it, father? Does the paper contain bad news?" asked Eugene.

"I should say it does. Mrs Clive Woodruf is accused of an attempt to poison her has-

"My God! can this be possible?"

"Yes, it is true, and she is now under arrest, but by her husband's request will be allowed to remain at Woodruf Hall, closely guarded, until he is well again."

"It she has been so unkind, so wicked, so treacherous to her husband, what must she have been to his daughter? Give me the paper, father," he said, shaking his head sadly.

"Not yet, my boy; I have a few questions to sak you. Did you notice anything peculiar about Madam Reek's actions?"

"Nothing, except that she was very nery-

"Think again; perhaps you may remember something more."

"Ah! I do remember how strange she acted when I intered the room, how interested she seemed to be in Meta's welfare and how anx ious to establish her innocence in the mind of Mr. Woodruf, yet refused to reveal her "Is this all you remember?" inquired Mr.

I also noticed that she seemed to take a great interest in her patient, more so than any nurse I ever met before. Such a nurse as she is may well be called an administering angel. Her voice sounded so familiar at times that, had I not known differently, I would have thought it belonged to my lost

What if I were to tell you that Madam Reek and Meta Woodruf are one and the same person?"

"I would not believe it. O father, do not try to rekindle one spark of hope within my "Read this, Eugene, and you will find out for yourself." Eugene took the paper and eagerly read that which his father had told him of.

It was true. Madam Reek was Meta Wood-. ruf in disguise. "My Meta, my darling; she may have broken her engagement with me, yet, thank God, she is not the misearble wretch I had cause to believe her to be. Father, I could almost curse myself for doubting her innocence for one moment. I now know why she dropped the glass when I entered her father's chamber; why she almost fainted when she left it, and why she was so de-voted to Mr. Woodruf." "Come, come, Eugene, quiet yourself a

"Forgive me, father, if I disturb you. but I can not help it. I wish you had been there with me and seen how gently she moved shout the sick room; how carefully she filled another glass with wine, after she had broken the first, and handed it to her patient with a smile on her lips, and gentle oving hands. How could I so forget my love as to forget those sweet lips. Oh, father, I can not live without her!" he exclaimed, wrineing his hands.

"What would you do? You can not compel her to marry you."

"You are right, father, yet I am going to see her, and hear from her own lips the words which will separate us forever. If she would only have pity on ms-on my lonely days of the future."

But what of Flossy?" 'Ah! I had almost forgetten her. She does not love me any too well, and if Meta should have changed her mind since she treated me so cruelly and will be my wife, Flossy will be only too happy to be released; beside, I think she is in love with Clarence Reed, and will soon inform me of that fact. i am now going to Woodruf Hail. If you see Florsy tell her of my sudden departure from home, and that I will not be able to be with her this evening." "You had better wait a few days; if Mr. Woodrut and his daughter are having so much trouble, they will have no time to waste on you."

"Perhaps you are right, yet if I were they I should be only too glad to have a friend, or even a discarded lover to sympathize with me. Father, give me your blessing and bid me God speed, should I meet with suc-cess; but your whole heart's sympathy if I should 'ail to win her heart and approval.' "Go, my son. May God be with you and grant you the success you deserve."

In another instant he had left the house. Calling a cab, he jumped into it and was driven to the depot. We will leave him on his way to Woodruf Hall, the place where dwelled all that was most dear to him, and return to the home of his betrothed.

Let us enter the Hall and go directly up the broad stairway into a room richly furnished, and hung in blue and gold; this is Flossy's chamber. Sitting in a large easy chair, is a lady who looks to be about thirtytive years old-a large, portly built lady | Frederick will receive prompt attention. At | with dark hair, and eyes filled with tenderses as she gazed down on the lovely girl at her side. This is Flossy Hay's mother. A tap on the door and a maid entered, bearing a card on a silver tray.

"What is i,t dear?" asked Mrs. Hav. "Mr. Reed, of course; and so early in the morning, too; the clock is just striking 10. Kate, say to the gentleman that I will be with him in a few moments." "It seems to me, Flossy, that his calls are too frequent upon an engaged young lady." "He is so pleasant, mamma, and I can not see what harm there is in his calling as often as he likes."

"You may not see the impropriety of it, but many of your friends will; besides, Eugene may not like it." "No nsense, dear mamma; anything which pleases at d amuses me he is satisfied with. Remain here, mamma, until I return. There good-bye," she said, kissing her mother. How beautiful she looked in her morning robe of or muon yelvet, with no jawelry on except a solitaire, given her by Engene as an engagement ring.

"Good morning, Mr. Resd. I dare say you have taken advantage of this lovely weather; that is, if you call such a morning as this lovely, when the snow almost blinds a person, and started out to do good by calling upon some of us more lazy ladies, who scarcely have our eyes open yet. However,

I am glad to see you." "I will not tell you a falsehood. I intend making only one call this morning, and that is upon yourself. Whether you are to be pitied or not is not for me to say." "Indeed I do not think I am, because I am glad you came, as I am very fond of being sutertained, and of having the opportunity of entertaining my friends."

tell you my secret. I love you and want you to be my wife.

"You know not what you sak. I can not be your wife." "Ah! then you love another. Why was I feel shough to think I could win you, love?" "You were not a fool in thinking so,

"Flossy, my darling, can it be that you will be mine after-"

Stand back. Look at this ring and you will know why I can not marry you." "You are betrothed to another; but that shall not stand between us if you love me. No honorable man will marry a woman, knowing her to love another."

"No. And no honorable woman will marry one man loving another. I have been en-

"I do, Clarence, with all my heart," she said, extending her hand, which he took and pressed to his lips, then turned and left In a few moments Mr. Reed returned ac companied by Mr. Hay and his wife. "Flossy, I am greatly surprised at your instability," said Mr. Hay, laconically; then continued in a more gentle voice: "This gentleman tells me that with our consent you will be his wife. Will you be so kind as to inform me what you have done with

"And yet you promised to mary him. God help you," interrupted Mr. Hay. "Have patience, papa, and listen to my explanation. Eugene knew that I did not love him, and yet he insisted upon me trying to learn to love him. I accepted his offer of marriage on one condition; that if at any time I sholud find it impossible to she is going to marry, he would release me from the engagement."

"And you have just found it out, I sup-"Yes, and I thank God for allowing me to learn my own heart before it was too late. I am sorry, my dear parents, if I have disappointed you in refusing to marry your favorite nephew," Flossy answered, her eyes dimmed with tears. "Never mind, my child; it is your happiness at stake as well as ours," said Mrs. Hay, kissing her caughter, and folding her in a

Mr. and Mrs. Hay excused themselves and left the happy lovers alone; for they had been young once themselves; they, too, re-membered the happy day of their engagement. We, too, will leave the lovers to themselves, as we do not care to hear the loving words exchanged by this happy conple How different this second engagement of Flossy's was from the first.

Their engagement was to be a short one. Mr. Reed insisted upon it, and Flossy made no objection, since she was to have been married to Eugene in two short weeks. But what if Eugene should retuse to release her? She did not give this a second thought, for she knew he was too honorable to hold her to his engagement with him.

Action of the Inauguration Executive Committee Relative to Tickets.

The action of the Executive Committee of the Inauguration Ceremonies at Washington in designating the Baltimore and Ohio ticket offices in the principal cities East and West as special depositories for the sale of Inauguration Ball tickets can not but prove of great advantage, as heretofore tickets could not be obtained for the ball until after arrival at the National Capital. Everybody knows where the B. and O. offices are in the leading cities; 83 Clark street in Chicago; 5 North High street in Columbus; 173 Walnut street in Cincinnati; 136 South Illinois St. in Indianapolis; 101 North Fourth street in St. Louis; 152 West Baltimore street in Battimore. The Baltimore and Ohio, as the only direct line from the West into Washington, has extended every facility to the Executive and other Committees in so I trace. shaping matters as to bring about complete success in every particular. The B. and O. has announced the lowest rates ever made for an inauguration, in most instances less than half-fare for the round trip, with a limit on the tickets of a most satisfactory length By the B and O.'s recently put on fast train schedule its noted limited trains of it sold than of any other sarsaparilla or make the run through to Washington, from all points, from one to six hours quicker than any of the limited trains on other lines. Not a nickel extra is charged for the fast time, which is directly to the contrary of the rula followed by other lines with their limited trains, for upon them double fare is the only way one can travel, and must take sleeping cars through, whether wishing so to do or not. On the B. and O. one exercises the good old American custom of going as be pleases. Trains run through solid, no change of cars of any class, and pay only for what is asked for-not a cent more, no matter what may be the custom on other lines. All these things are well worth considering before starting.

White Willow Wind Brakes

A Nebraska correspondent of the Farmers' Review writes: Three years ago I set out several rows of white willows, one behind | bearing-down sensations across me, and was the other, eight, ten, or twelve feet apart, on | quite weak and discouraged. I sent and got "I do not want to be entertained as a | the west and north of where I expected to some of the medicine after receiving your friend only, but as something more. and putting them on. I cultivated them two years The second winter they formed a complete snow and wind brake. I set them ten or twelve inches apart. Now they are from fifteen to twenty feet high, and are of great value in protecting stock from the cold wind in winter, and make a grand shade in summer. Besides, they are a thing of beauty
—a joy forever. If I were going to open a new farm one of the first things I would do would be to put out a few acres of these willows. I have a cottonwood grove of something near 3,000 trees, but for use and service to the farmer I think that one acre of willows is worth more than five acres of cotton wood. Ten or twelve miles down the river are willow hedge-fences set out ten or fifteen years ago. They are worth from fifty cents to $1 gaged to my cousin for several weeks. No | per rod for nrewood. When cut down they one knows of it but my most intimate | will sprout up again. The farmer can grow no other timber to equal it for profit. If you were here to-day and see how comfortable my cattle and hogs are behind this threeyear old grove you would agree with me. Too much can not be said in praise of these willow groves as wind-brakes on the prairies.

> Visitors to the World's Exposition at New Orleans Have doubtless noticed the magnificent display of the Chicago, Milwaukee and St. Paul Railway, located in the Government buildstreet. It is one of the most attractive features of the Exposition, handsomely dec orated with the agricultural products of the famous Northwest, along the lines of the Chicago, Milwankee and St. Paul Railway. The exhibits are chiefly from the Territory of Dakota, with some good samples from Iowa, Minnesota, Wisconsin and Illinois. Among the many products exhibited is a splendid assortment of corn, and it is no exaggeration to say that better corn was never seen in any State in the Union. The wheat, oats, rye, barley, flax and hemp are all of the finest quality; stalks of surgar cane ten feet in length; cottonwood trees ten feet tall, grown in one season from slips; four stalks of cotton, with numerous balls of cotton on, grown near Elk Point, Dak .: squashes of all varieties, small and large, weighing 185, 128, 126 120, 114 1/2, and others weighing 100 pounds each; sweet pumpkins weighing 75 and 100 pounds, and many smaller; also common pumpkins of immense size; tu:nips, carrots, beets, parsnips, radishes, cu-cumbers, egg plant, red green and yellow peppers; watermelons, large and small, one weighing 37 pounds; mushmelons, cantaloupes, citrons and gourds; cabbage, caulidower, sweet potatoes, asparagus, onions, peanuts and tobacco; potatoes of excellent quality, the largest weighing three and onelove him, as a woman enght to love the man | half pounds; samples of strawberry vines, blue grass, blue stem, millet, timothy, red top clover and Dakota cactus and sunflower. Most not cable among the exhibits is a design of a locomotive and tender and a train of cars, consisting of a locomotive and tender, baggage car and coach complete, and a figure of a lady (life-size), all made entirely of grain and grasses. Numerous other beautiful designs, showing an unlimited amount of artistic taste and talent, are among the collection.

A Sure Cure for Catarrh.

Catarrh is best described as a nasal cold, and will if neglected become chronic, and thus by extending to the throat and lungs prove dangerous. It is not only very offensive and annoying, but it enfeebles, and if not attended to in time, destroys the mucous lining of the nasal cavities. Pond's Extract is a specific remedy for this disease. Its application gives immediate relief by removing all objectionable matter from the obstructed passages. For cases of particularly severe or chronic catarrh we recommend the use of Pond's Extract Catarrh Remedy, in which the medicinal virtues of Pond's Extract are combined with other well known ingredients, thus increasing the soothing and healing qualities of the remedy.

A great many people who drive horses do not know what kind of a bit or bearing-rein is best adapted to their particular case. Some animals will become slow with the over-check and upper-jaw bit on, while others with the side-bearing rein will take hold of the bit and pull, the head being drawn in toward the breast, causing them frequently to choke. Attention to a few simple hints may make pleasant drives for those owning and driving road horses.

Have the bridle fit nicely. The bit should touch the angles of the mouth, and do not allow the blinds to flare open. Have holes in the crown piece for an over check and loops on the throat latch for bearing rein, so that either may be used.

Prickly Ash Bitters is an unfailing specific for all complaints arising from a deraugement of the functions of the liver. It purifies the blood and infuses new life into the invalid. #### HOPE!

A young man named John Naves, living near here, had an eating cancer on his face, which had eaten away his nose, part of his cheek, and extended up nearly to his eye. It was one of the most angry eating sores I had ever seen. His throat finally became involved to such an extent that he could only swallow liquid food. After using all the remedies without checking the ravages of the eating cancer, his gene al health was broken down, he was confined to his bed, and thought it to be only a question of time about his death from the cancer. I put him on swift's Specific as a last resort, and he began to improve with the flist dose. His general health improved at once, and rapidly; his throat got well; the ravages of the cancer were soon stopped; it began to heal around the edges; and after a few months treatment with a S. Mrs. Turner's case i-well known in that community. She says: "I was afflicted for two or three years with Ecz-ma and Eryspelas combined. My whole system was broken down, my strength and appetite gone. and I became as helpless as a child, being lifted from place to place by my friends. I was treated by the best physicians in the community with Iodide of Potesh and the other usual remedies for such cases. I was given up to die by my friends. My sufferings were beyond description, and I had lost all hope of recovery. Last January I was in duced to try Swift's Specific, having received a paniphlet from the company detailing its merits. The first half-dozen bottles had the effect to bring back hope to my heart, and the thought of being well again brought joy and gladness to the house-hold. I have taken altogether 24 bottles.
